Armenia

Armenia suffered the first major genocide of the last century when 1.5 million Armenians were murdered by the Ottomans. Nagorno-Karabakh is an Armenian enclave, located by Stalin in Azerbaijan, whose people resisted attempted ethnic cleansing in a bitter war from 1990-1994.

After graduating in June, he returned to his people. They cleared the dense jungle, built a Training Centre and sent messengers to over 150 villages inviting them to elect a man and woman to come to train as CHWs.

By November, everything was ready and 317
students had arrived from 153 villages to begin their training to become CHWs.

Northern Uganda

Northern Uganda has suffered from the the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA), which terrorised this area for 20 years, displacing more than 1.6 million people, and killing and maiming innocent civilians.

The LRA also abducted at least 25,000 children, brutalising them and forcing them to become soldiers.

As a result of the war and the displacement of northern Uganda peoples, there are many orphans who are vulnerable to neglect and starvation.

Recent development

Fulani Herdsmen who used to roam through lands with vast herds of cattle have adopted a new policy of attacking Christian villages, destroying homes, driving people off their lands and settling in their place: ethnic and religious cleansing.

‘Thank you for coming.

Like St. Thomas the Apostle who couldn’t believe until he put his hand into Christ’s wounded hands and side, you came to put your hand into the wounds of our suffering. Now you have seen our pain, you can believe and tell our story.’
