

An Article in the Hereford Times on 10th December 2019

FORMER Hereford mayor Marcelle Lloyd-Hayes has been given the freedom of the city.

Marcelle decided not to stand in the May council elections to make way for new councillors after 24 years representing city residents.

She moved to Hereford in 1982 and was a Liberal Democrat councillor before becoming one of the founder members of It's Our City which went on to become It's Our County.

She said it was an honour and very memorable occasion to receive the freedom of Hereford.

"I have been very blessed to work with so many colleagues, officers and friends over the past 25 years, which has allowed me to achieve so much," she said.

Current mayor Kath Hey nominated Marcelle for the honour of the freedom in Hereford. "I wanted to celebrate her contribution to Hereford over many years working on a vast number of projects," she said. "She has worked tirelessly for the good of the city and is respected for her determination and passion.

